Gadwa will be remembered

RCMP officer touched many lives during his 34-year career

By TANYA KOSTIW

Review Contributor

Ever since he was a little boy, Kehewin's Marc Peter Gadwa wanted to be an RCMP officer. He made history by becoming the Bonnyville RCMP detachment's first aboriginal officer. In this role and subsequent years in the social work field, Gadwa touched a lot of lives.

Perhaps it came as no surprise then, the number of people who came to say goodbye to Gadwa last month, after he died of a heart attack July 9.

"People had a lot of respect for him wherever he went," said his daughter Tammy Gadwa. "That's all you hear is, 'Your dad was a great man.' He respected everybody, he never said anything bad about anybody. He's helped out a lot of people. He had a big heart."

Gadwa enlisted in the RCMP in 1977 and was posted in Bonnyville and then later in St. Paul.

"This was his childhood dream to be an RCMP officer. He's always wanted to do that since he was a little guy," said Tammy.

She said his family was proud of his accomplishment.

"I was a small, little girl then and I still remember when he was marching and everything he was doing. I was proud. I was proud of my dad. My dad was always my hero growing up."

She said he was also inspirational to the community.

"A lot of people really looked up to him in the community, no matter if he arrested somebody."

Gadwa's family kept an old newspaper article about him when he first became an RCMP officer. He was quoted as having said he was always ready to perform his duty even if he had to arrest his own parents.

"We used to laugh about that because my mosom (grandfather) and my kokom (grandmother) weren't too happy when they read that," said Tammy.

George Stanley, Alberta's regional chief for the Assembly of First Nations, trained to become an RCMP officer with Gadwa in Regina and worked in neighbouring detachments.

"I enlisted about the same time as him and I got to work with him very closely," he said.

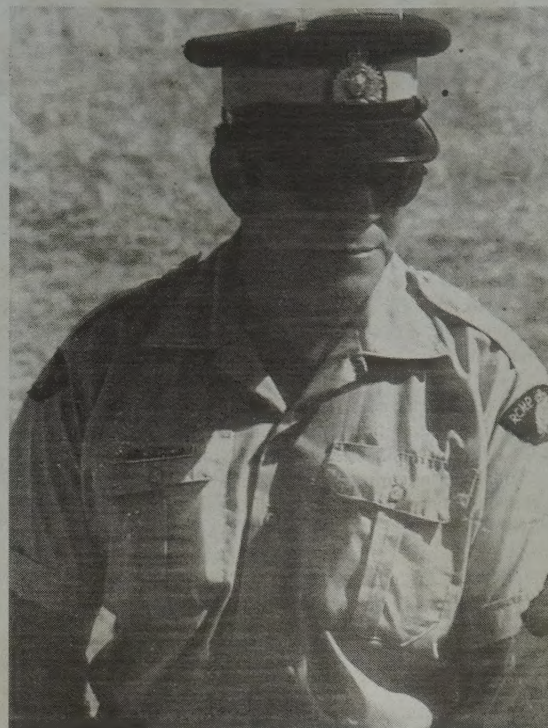

Stanley said Gadwa liked to work with youth, and was very instrumental in helping to prevent crimes against youth and women. He said Gadwa was serious about his job and never abused it, noting how he was hard-working, honest and well-respected.

"I was really honoured that the family asked me to do something," he said, explaining how he helped bring an honour guard for Gadwa's funeral. Stanley also spoke at the funeral.

A prayer vigil was held for Gadwa July 12 and 13 at the Kehewin School gymnasium. Tammy said the venue was so full of people, some stood outside. Among the guests were honorary pallbearers from the RCMP's K division.

"It was an honour to have them all come out there," said Tammy.

After an honourable discharge from the RCMP in

Marc Peter Gadwa

1988, Gadwa became involved in social work.

Jaime Hunter-Quinn, team leader at Tribal Chiefs Child and Family Services in Blue Quills, worked with Gadwa for 13 years where he was a child protection investigator.

"He was very kind, open, honest," she said.

Hunter-Quinn said Gadwa had an "awesome sense of humour" and was the only man in the office.

"So he really had to adjust to all the females around him, the jokes that we'd say, the conversations that we'd have," she laughed. "He'd kind of sit back, laugh. He'd offer his little comments when necessary. He was so awesome to work with."

Tammy said it was a shock to lose her father at the age of 66, as his father lived to the age of 91.

"I always thought my dad was going to live that old too. I never thought we'd lose him this early," she said.

"We didn't expect to lose him from a heart attack of all things because he was always busy doing everything, always mowing his lawn - it was always the funniest thing. We used to always tease him because my dad probably had one of the best lawns in Kehewin. I swear, he rode his lawnmower every day. He hated it when it rained because he couldn't be out there mowing his lawn."

Tammy recalled an important lesson her father taught her about respect.

"One of the most important things my dad taught me in life was to respect everybody. That was the most important thing my parents have always said was you respect everybody, it doesn't matter who it is, what they do, you just respect them."

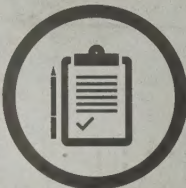

Gadwa will likely be remembered for many things - his role as Bonnyville's first aboriginal RCMP officer, his dedication to child welfare, his desire to help all the children he fostered, his love for his family, or perhaps his nice front lawn.

But one thing is certain - Marc Gadwa will not be forgotten any time soon.

Elk Point softball player helps Team Alberta win bronze

By NICOLE GILLET
Review Contributor

Around 2,300 athletes and 3,000 volunteers gathered in Kamloops, B.C. to take part in the Western Canada Summer Games Aug 5-14. Elk Point softball player Taylor Cochrane helped Team Alberta to a bronze medal finish.

"It was a really great experience at the summer games," Cochrane said. "I met a lot of new people and really had a lot of fun and we were able to bring home a medal for Alberta."

The 19 sports of the summer games were split into two weeks of competition and included softball teams from B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

The Alberta team started the summer games with round robin play, taking third place with a record of 2-4 before playoffs.

The playoffs saw Manitoba defeat Alberta 9-1, which left the Alberta team to settle for bronze while Manitoba moved onto the finals. B.C. overtook Manitoba in the finals 8-1 for the gold.

On the first day of batting action, Alberta girls lost to Manitoba 6-3 and Saskatchewan 7-5. Alberta came back on day two to defeat Manitoba 7-2, but lost to B.C. 8-2. In the rematch against Saskatchewan, Team Alberta threw a no-hitter for a 6-0 win, but lost to B.C. 3-0.

B.C. was the dominant team throughout the competition and Cochrane was happy with the performance of her team against the B.C. team in the round robin play although they were defeated.

"I pitched against B.C. and for four innings I was able to keep the them to one run," Cochrane said. "They had beaten other teams pretty badly so I was proud to be able to keep the score down."

Although Team Alberta lost the game, Cochrane and her team kept the B.C. team from scoring too many runs and ended the match with a final score of 3-0 in favor of B.C.

On the final day, Alberta lost to Manitoba 6-0 and won against Saskatchewan 6-5.

Team Alberta participated in a pre-departure camp and played a few exhibition games in order to prepare for their competition at the summer games, Cochrane explained.

"We also talked to a sports psychologist to learn how to cope with nervousness and to know how nervous you should be before a game," Cochrane said. "It was really interesting and the first time I have ever done something like that."

This was Cochrane's first Western Canada Summer Games experience and she was happy to be a member of the team.

Cochrane got her start with the sport of softball at a young age and has continued to play and grow up with the sport because of her family's involvement with the game, the 15-year-old athlete explained.

"My parents have always played softball, so I started from there when I was probably four or five years old," Cochrane said. "My parents and sisters have supported me in the sport and my two older sisters both play and they have always been my role models."

Cochrane quickly made the transition from recreational softball to a competitive league. She is currently a member of the Lloydminster Rebels bantam A team and plans to continue with the sport in the future.

"I hope to go on to play college ball. I'd like to make a career out of it if I could, but that is pretty hard to do with softball," Cochrane said. Although she doesn't know where her future will take her with the sport, Cochrane added that she would continue to play no matter what.

After the Western Canada Summer Games, Cochrane and the Lloydminster Rebels had one more tournament left in the season, which was a national competition held in Winnipeg.

Cochrane said she was looking forward to seeing teams from across Canada and competing against them and added it would be an eye-opening experience. The national competition took place over the weekend.

Cochrane will continue to play softball next season and said she is already looking forward to the competition and experience she will encounter and hopes she has the opportunity to attend another competition similar to the summer games.

Fort George and Buckingham House ready to host annual jamboree on Sunday

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

The hills above the North Saskatchewan River will echo with music on Sunday afternoon, as Fort George and Buckingham House Historic Site presents their annual Forts des Prairies Jamboree.

Country musicians and vocalists and some exceptional old-time fiddlers are expected to be on hand for this signature event, which goes from noon until 5 p.m. Bring along a lawn chair to ensure you have a comfortable seat for the show.

The lively music is likely to set your toes to tapping, and you may even want to take a spin or two around the grassy dance floor in front of the stage.

The site's normal admission fees include admission to the show, tours to the original fur trade sites and through the multimedia interpretive centre, and fun activities for the children.

Barbecued burgers, coffee and cold drinks will be available between noon and 3 p.m.

The Forts des Prairies Jamboree is the final event of 2011 for Fort George and Buckingham House, which will close its doors for the season on Labour Day.

Forts staff report that it has been a busy summer, with excellent attendance at both the Riverland Adventure Challenge in May and the Saskatoon Festival in July and a near-record number of school groups visiting the site in late May and throughout June. A planned geocaching event did not draw any attendance because of a rainy afternoon in June.

Deputy Minister of Culture and Community Spirit Lois Hawkins was a special visitor at the Forts in early July, and enjoyed some saskatoon pie while visiting with the staff. Program coordinator Ross Stromberg even showed off his prowess at lighting a fire with a bow-powered stick igniting a heap of tinder in true fur-trade style for this special guest.

The interpretive centre's gift shop has done an excellent business this year, but still has lots to offer, including cute wildlife stuffed animals and an excellent selection of books on the fur trade, explorers and other interesting topics.

Sunday's jamboree is a great time to visit Fort George and Buckingham House, but for those who are all booked up that day, there is still all of the week that follows and the Labour Day long weekend to visit the site and enjoy a woodland walk to the original sites, or a cool excursion though the interpretive centre in air-conditioned comfort. The site is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. until Sept. 5, and the staff will be happy to show you around.

'Royal' dissent

Last week's change of names from the all-encompassing Canadian Forces back to Royal Canadian Navy, Royal Canadian Air Force and Canadian Army has brought about a royal brouhaha.

Yes, perhaps the change does point out our country's tie to Britain and the monarchy. That tie is slimmer than it was when Prime Minister Trudeau's defense minister shot down the 'Royal' names in favour of unification of the forces, but it is a tie, nonetheless.

The recent visit of royal newlyweds, the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, AKA Will and Kate, brought about plenty of Union-Jack-waving from their Canadian hosts, at least as warm a welcome as would be given to one's own relatives visiting from abroad.

The monarchy was once a big part of Canadians' lives, but is now more like having elderly relatives that live far away. You still know they're there, and respect them but don't pay a great deal of attention to them.

If we look at returning 'Royal' to the names of the military branches in the same way as naming a baby after Great Uncle Albert, as a matter of respect, rather than obligation, perhaps it might be more acceptable to those who feel the monarchy is an unneeded relic of the past.

Way Back When...Oilmen's golf, Games silver, Norris impressed

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF AUG. 23 IN...

1986

Ed Soldan was named champion at the third annual Elk Point Oilmen's Golf Tournament, with the previous year's winner, Jim Baylis, placing second in the championship round. Pan Canadian Petroleum had been granted ERCB approval for a three-phase commercial oil sands project in the Elk Point area, but it was considered likely that major expenditure on the project would be deferred until at least 1989 due to the depressed oil market.

1991

Ed Soldan won a tiebreaker against Oilmen's Association tiebreaker to take the championship in the Eighth Annual Elk Point Oilmen's Golf Tournament, with 112 golfers taking part. Tanya Kenyon won two silver medals at the Alberta Summer Games in Stettler, placing second in barrel racing and pole bending.

1996

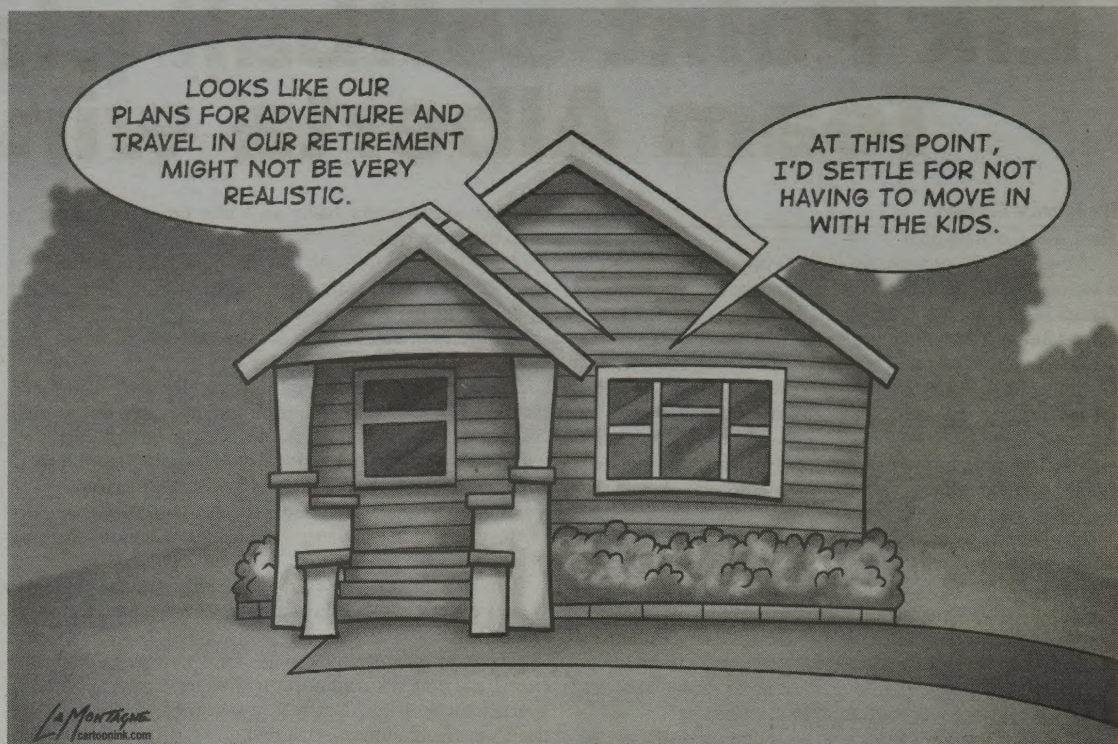

Pat Nairn shot a two round total of 114 to win the 13th Elk Point Oilmen's Golf Tournament. Elk Point ratepayers were not complaining about picking up the tab for half of the Elk Point but Mayor Ed Buck was hoping adjoining jurisdictions would sign agreements allowing the service to answer calls in their areas and in turn, helping the town and the County of St. Paul with the cost.

2001

Minister of Economic Development Mark Norris was "overwhelmed" by his tour of the area, which included meetings with Mayor Ed Buck and chamber of commerce president Eugene Buck, and a tour down the Iron Horse Trail to Heinsburg. Tom Parenteau was named the 2001 Elk Point Oilmen's Golf champion for the second time in three years.

2006

Troy Lorensen was named champion at the 23rd Annual Elk Point Oilmen's Golf Tournament after a great weekend of golf action. Midsummer complaints regarding an overabundance of dogs, untidy premises and noisy parties were on the agenda for town council.

GUEST COLUMN*It's all in a name!

Last Tuesday, Defense Minister Peter MacKay announced the restoration of the royal designation for the navy and air force. The move is a way of connecting today's Canadian Forces members with a proud history, said MacKay, who made the announcement on the 100th anniversary of King George V establishing the Royal Canadian Navy. Retired colonel Chris Hadfield, best known as the first Canadian to walk in space, echoed that sentiment in a statement. Hadfield flew on two space shuttle missions, in 1995 and 2001. "In our military, it is often tradition and a sense of place in history that sustains us, especially when life is under threat," he said. "To reinstate the long-established names of our armed services supports the Canadians serving in harm's way around the world, is respectful of our veterans, and is good for our nation."

from the FCSS desk

Under the Pierre Trudeau government in 1968, Defense Minister Paul Hellyer removed the royal designation from the navy and air force and created one central command called the Canadian Forces. So what has happened is that the feelings about the name change or renewal of previous name have brought forward expressions of support or non-support. Some expressions state: "It smacks of the days when Canada was an Anglo society, which it is not anymore." "It pleases people who are strong loyalists or monarchists or with a great attachment to the United Kingdom, but it doesn't please people who see themselves as Canadians with a separate country." These are only a couple of the comments when some people heard the news as it first broke. However, what all of this is stating is that a name, no matter what the name is, is very important and it draws feelings.

Even when each of us look back into our own personal history, some of us may wonder where our name came from and what does it mean. For example, on my paternal grandfather's wife's line, her father came from Sweden. In Swedish, his last name was Ericsson, which means he was the son of Eric. On my maternal grandfather's line, his father came from Germany. His last name was Glore (spelling has changed over the years). Anyway, the name means his occupation has something to do with heat. Either he was a blacksmith, a chef in the kitchen or something else related to heat. In other words, the name of a person identifies our roots.

Likewise, if we can argue that the name of person identifies our roots, why are we changing the root name of something like our military forces going through a name change that took place in 1968? Maybe the name should have never been changed back then. Therefore we can argue that a name correction was made last Tuesday.

Another point of argument is that the province of Alberta received its name back in 1905. Alberta is named after Great Britain's Princess Louise Caroline Alberta. She was the fourth daughter of Queen Victoria. Should we change the name of our province just because some people today might not support anything that suggests a royal historical root? What about the name of our own town? Just because the first postmaster came from Elk Point, South Dakota, should we change the name just because we don't see that many "elk" in the area? Hopefully, most people are saying: "Don't be silly!" Besides, the cost would be too high – both financially and emotionally. So there you go. We don't need to change names.

From all of this debate, can it be said, "It's all in a name that gives us roots and identity!" Therefore when we think of our military, their roots and identity is important to them and likewise to us. The Canadian navy and air force are once again sporting the royal moniker, much to the delight of veterans and others who for decades decried the actions of politicians of a bygone era. Defense Minister Peter MacKay officially rebranded the Royal Canadian Navy and Royal Canadian Air Force at a naming ceremony Tuesday, August 16, 2011 at the jetty at HMC Backyard in Halifax.

As Canadians, many of us will be saying: "Congratulations for stating who you are." The name identifies and we are proud of you!

JAPANESE SUMMER PROGRAM
July 26 - August 11, 2011

This summer, our community enjoyed the opportunity of hosting an International Summer Education and Cultural Program for 28 Grade 10 Japanese female students, 2 Japanese teachers and 2 Japanese agents.

These students from an all girls school in Tokyo, Japan thoroughly enjoyed their time here in our St. Paul & area community and were warmly embraced with open arms and open hearts by everyone who met them.

Special thanks to our 29 wonderful host families, our 7 student mentors, our 3 ESL teachers, our community businesses and organizations, volunteers assisting with activities in the program, and the many individuals who took the time to share a bit of themselves with our new friends.

On July 26, 2011, when the students arrived, there were tears of anxiety and worry, and by the time they were to leave, August 11, 2011, there were tears of regret and sadness, as they needed to leave their trusted new friends and families to head back home to their families in Japan.

Thank you to everyone who left "footprints" in the hearts of our Japanese friends...
I know they left "footprints" in our hearts and our minds. Memories of this experience will be tucked away forever in our hearts.

Thanks again ... to our St. Paul and area community, a community with hearts.

IN MEMORIAM

BAILEY, Brian

August 22, 2001

It has been 10 years since you have passed away.

*A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled,
We miss the sunshine of his face,
His fond and loving care.
Our home is dark without you,
We miss you everywhere,
God in His wisdom has recalled
The boon his love had given,
And though the body moulders
here,
The soul is safe in Heaven.*

Always loved and sadly missed by your wife Nelia and your son Brendan.

Make the grade: eat eggs

As children across Canada get ready to return to school, parents start to think about getting back into morning routines. Adding eggs into school day breakfasts can help Canadian children make the grade.

Breakfast egg-celerates learning

The research is clear: children who eat a nutritious breakfast that is high in protein perform better at school. Children need proper nourishment to give them the energy they need for their growing minds and bodies. Eating a well-balanced breakfast including protein can increase concentration and help children pay attention in the classroom, which naturally improves their math and reading skills, behaviour, attendance and test scores. Starting the day with eggs can help kids do their very best at school.

"Breakfast truly is the most important meal of the day and eggs are the ideal back-to-school breakfast," says Karen Harvey, Registered Dietitian, Egg Farmers of Canada. "Affordable and convenient, eggs are a rich source of protein, which helps kids - and adults - get the most out of their day."

Eggs are packed with 14 essential nutrients needed to keep people healthy and active group.

Grains, oilseeds review recommends a more competitive Alberta

SUBMITTED BY AGRiNEWS

A partnership of government and business leaders has identified 18 priority actions to make Alberta's economy more competitive, including steps to address Alberta's looming labour shortage. The report, Moving Alberta Forward, was released by the Alberta Competitiveness Council on May 18.

The report included a grains and oilseeds review.

"After almost a year of consultations, and meeting with over 300 people and groups, some really good ideas were put forward," says co-chair and former agriculture minister, George Groeneveld. "Five specific recommendations have been included in this grains and oilseeds review. These recommendations centered on free market choice, competitive and innovative industry policies, rural renewal through a new generation of farmers, research and new crop development."

The rural renewal recommendation, involves developing a pilot project for incubator farms. Using a number of available open areas, the province plans to encourage new farming ventures and ideas for smaller plots. Assistance would be available to turn some of these burgeoning innovative ideas into commercial businesses.

Recommendations for research and innovation are very important and entail a considerable scope of work. Secondary processing plants will be one of the targets for innovation. There are existing plans that Alberta can study to formulate a unique Alberta plan.

"There are some real action items in this review," says Groeneveld. "The New West Partnership, with Saskatchewan, Alberta and B.C. came to mind immediately as a vehicle with amazing possibilities for moving forward with some of these recommendations."

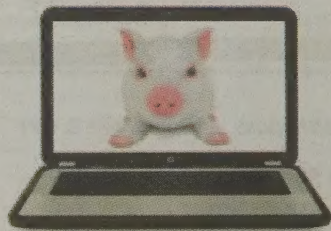

To read the full report and actions put forward by the council to improve Alberta's overall competitiveness, visit the Alberta Government webpage at www.alberta.ca, enter Moving Alberta Forward in the search field, and click on the Alberta Competitiveness Council Report.

The Alberta government is working to build a better Alberta by fostering economic growth, strengthening our health and education systems, investing in infrastructure, supporting safe and strong communities and ensuring a clean and healthy environment.
